University Women Hear Speech by Ecologist

Dr. John Wannamaker, world traveler and head of the biology department at Principia College, was the guest speaker at the Thursday night dinner meeting of the American Association of University Women in the Rose Bowl restaurant.

Projects planned for the next few months were also discussed at the meeting.

Wannamaker discussed the plight of many almost extinct species of animals in the world today. He also spoke about present problems of pollution and ecology.

He has traveled extensively in Africa, Asia, the Orient and many other parts of the world. Last summer he took 19 university students to Alaska to study wildlife.

He showed slides of the wildlife in Iran and Africa to the women's group and discussed the problems of wildlife preservation.

He has been awarded an honor by Queen Elizabeth II for his work in this area. He has also been appointed director of the Joy Adamson Wildlife Foundation.

Joy Adamson, the author of "Born Free", has devoted her life to wildlife in Africa. While Wannamaker was taking a group of students through Africa, she joined it and traveled with them for several weeks.

Wannamaker also told of the predicament of the Bald Eagle.

lock at Pere Marquette State Park in Grafton. The flocks, numbering about 150, was threatened earlier this year when a ski lift was planned which would disturb the flock's nesting area. The crisis ended when the planners agreed to move the ski lift to another slope nearby.

Guests at the meeting included Mrs. Mildred Kerch, Geraldine Cox, Mrs. Kienle, Ethyl Lieber, Ellen Grace Hoffman, Mrs. Kienle and several husbands of the members.

Projects discussed included the selling of University Women's cookbooks to make money for the Granite City scholarship fund, and the making of felt warmers to give to persons at nursing homes as Christmas gifts.

Income Tax Aids Schools, Eases Some Taxes--Ogilvie

Has the enactment of a state income tax damaged the standing of Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie and the Republican Party?

Not in the opinion of Gov. Ogilvie, who has written letters to party leaders here and elsewhere presenting what he regards as the positive, constructive side of the 1968-70 record.

He relates, "As your candidate for governor in 1968, I exposed the bankruptcy into which Democratic misrule had plunged the state of Illinois. I pledged to you and all the people of the state that we would begin to build a new Illinois—a state which would meet its obligations in the field of education, law enforcement and public service."

"We have done just that. In less than two years, we have made remarkable progress," the governor believes.

"When I took the oath of office as governor in January 1969, Illinois was on the verge of bankruptcy. Its funds were in disgrace—a clear trap for motorists and passengers alike. The state had borrowed $60 million from road funds to meet payrolls and other bills. There was no money available to finance any increase in the state's contribution to schools."

Pollution, Recreation
"State government was an archaic monstrosity. Pollution was rampant."

fair to individuals and business alike, but would enable us to provide quality service.

This income tax was passed by the legislature with support of Democrats as well as Republicans.

As a result of its passage, we have increased the state contribution to elementary and high school education to $70 million. This is virtually double the amount provided in the year preceding my inauguration as governor.

"A special financial grant has been provided to meet the increased costs of high school education—and this is where the bulk of revenue from the state income tax is going."

"But not all. We have virtually eliminated the personal property tax on individuals, established an exemption on real estate taxes for the elderly and veterans."

"We have begun the greatest road program in the history of Illinois—re-surfacing and improving 2200 miles of state roads in 18 months. We also widened and updated 123 bridges in downstate Illinois."

"We have inaugurated a program of returning a portion of state income tax to the community from which it is collected. If local officials will cooperate—as they have in some sections of the state—property taxes can be reduced or at least held at current levels."

"We have begun an all-out fight against pollution of air and water."

Law Enforcement
"We have established a professional Illinois Department of Law Enforcement to fight the organized crime syndicate and strengthen law enforcement in every part of Illinois."

"We have begun the reorganization of state government and recruited top-flight talent into a Bureau of the Budget, which has won the approval of professional and civic groups in every part of the state. And there have been many more achievements by your Republican administration in less than two years."

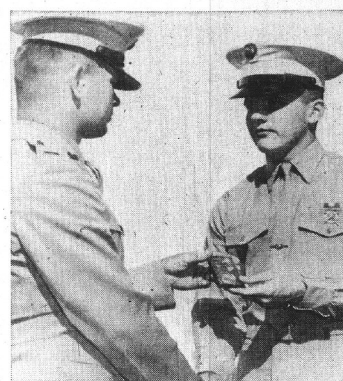

"Yet with it all, Illinois has set one of the lowest state tax structures of any state in the union. Of the 40 states and 40 of the 50 states have an income tax—Illinois has one of the lowest. It is substantially lower than income taxes imposed almost every neighboring state," Ogilvie concluded.

EXPERT RIFLEMAN, Marine Pfc. Jimmy W. Rice, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Gay of Rural Route Two, at right, receives Marksmanship Medal furnished by Leatherneck Magazine for attaining a score of 225 points, out of a possible 250, in competition against 60 fellow Marines.

Marine Pfc Rice, 17, Earns 'Expert' Medal
A youthful Granite City Marine has been awarded an "Expert Rifleman" medal by Leatherneck Magazine and a certificate for his accomplishment in the state income tax is going.

Marine Private First Class Jimmy W. Rice, 17, was presented the medal and a certificate for his accomplishment in the state income tax is going.

"In order that you may have a complete understanding of your son's accomplishment," the Marine commander wrote, "it should be noted that his score of 225 of a possible 250 was in direct competition with 60 men of Platoon 2095 who had manning training as Pfc Rice."

Col. Day noted the Granite City serviceman had attained the highest marksmanship score of his platoon while firing for qualification and would receive the Leatherneck Magazine medal and certificate.

"We of the Marine Corps, who take pride in our marksmanship records, are proud to welcome your son into our ranks as an 'Expert Rifleman,'" the colonel said.

Pfc Rice volunteered for active duty with the Marine Corps last July 15, following his graduation the previous month from Granite City high school. He will observe his 18th birthday on Nov. 30.

The serviceman was promoted to his present rank on the same date the medal was presented at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego, Calif., where he is a member of the Second Recruit Training Battalion.

In addition to the "Expert" medal, the local Marine also has received two other marksmanship qualifying awards, his parents learned.

Law Enforcement Costly-Howlett

The problems of law enforcement could be attacked more effectively if we were all better citizens, and this would be preferable to raising taxes, Michael J. Howlett, state Auditor of Public Accounts, said yesterday.

Addressing a Columbus Day dinner of the Knights of Columbus at the K of C Clubhouse in Edwardsville, Howlett said, "We can count up the school-rooms that aren't built. We can count the poverty, mental health, and housing requests that go unfilled."

"What we can't count is the hidden cost of law enforcement. This hidden cost is the result of lawlessness on the part of a very small minority."

"The amount we all pay for this crime is enormous. It is enormous in the amount of respect we lose in ourselves and in our fellow citizens."

"As long as we continue to pay this price, we will not make any social progress. The price tag becomes higher than any money expenditure of local government. It paralyzes us into fear and distrust."

If we accomplish our goal of making government more responsive to its citizens, of bringing government to the people, we can all work together to make life in our cities more like what we want it to be.

Meat Inspection Regulations to Be Reissued

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has reissued Federal meat inspection regulations — becoming effective Dec. 1 — to incorporate extensive changes made necessary by passage of the Wholesome Meat Act.

The regulations cover all aspects of the Federal meat inspection program — including provisions for before-and-after slaughter inspection, reinspection, plant sanitation, labeling of meat products, inspection of imported products, detention and seizure authorities, and many other specific details of inspection.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said that many sections of the regulations are unchanged, except for numbering or slight editorial changes which do not affect their intent.

The regulations were originally published as a proposal in the Federal Register on Aug. 14, 1969, and interested parties were given opportunity to comment. Replies were received from a variety of interests and considered before the regulations were issued.

Consumers, consumer organizations, the affected industries, trade organizations, Federal, State, and Municipal governments, members of Congress, governments of foreign countries, labor unions, and educational and research organizations were represented in the 347 responses received.

Copies of the regulations may be obtained from the Consumer Protection Program Services Staff, Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20259.

California Has The Most Vets; New York Second

California maintained its lead as the state with the largest number of veterans—2,992,000—according to Veterans Administration's latest estimates on U. S. veterans' population.

The figures are compiled annually, as of June 30, based on census figures and VA data, as a basis for planning services to veterans.

New York was second to California with 2,533,000 veterans, followed by Pennsylvania, with 1,785,000; Illinois, with 1,376,000; and Texas, with 1,370,000. The next five runner-ups were Michigan, New Jersey, Florida, Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

The VA said Alaska has the smallest number of veterans—30,000. Wyoming with 33,000 has the least among the contiguous states.

Total U. S. veteran population reached 22,647,000, as of the end of last fiscal year. It was swelled by 4,173,000 veterans of the Vietnam Era. Vietnam Era veterans are still heavily outnumbered by the 14,458,000 World War II veterans, but their numbers are closing the gap on the total for those who had military service during the Korean Conflict—5,867,000. About 1,536,000 World War I veterans are living today. With an average of 75.7 years, they are still "youngsters" compared to the 5000 Spanish-American War veterans whose average age is 91.2 years. The largest block of veterans, those who served in World War II, average 80.7 in age. Vietnam Era veterans are 26.7 years old, on the average. Some 24,000 are under 20 and 1674 are under 25.

Contributions to SIU Foundation Increase

Contributions to Southern Illinois University-Southwestern through the SIU Foundation have continued their upward trend, Charles Schweizer, assistant director, reported at the annual fall meeting of the Foundation board Thursday at St. Louis.

Schweizer attributes the upward swing to the fact that "people appreciate the relative calm which has prevailed at Southern Illinois and recognize that the majority of students are in college for an education."

These contributions are not in the millions, Schweizer pointed out, but in the tens and twenties and one in the thousands. "It is the number of givers and the fact that they are repeaters which pleases me. This indicates we have many friends, and I know of nothing more important than friends," Schweizer said.

In his report to the board, the SIU-SW campus Foundation assistant paid special tribute to the Friends of the Library, the Friends of Music and the Slavic and East European Friends of SIU-SW. "We are leaders in Slavic literature and our music collection is amazing. These friends are bringing many folks to the University who are discovering that it has much to offer them, whether they are eight or 80."

Since the beginning of the SIU Foundation fiscal year, April 1, 1970, loan funds for the campus have increased by $6698 and five new loan funds bring the total to 28. Schweizer said in his report. Endowment funds increased $778. "Ninety-two students at SIU-SW received loans and 38 received awards or grants through the Foundation between April 1 and Sept. 15."

Schweizer closed his report citing "a few hundred faculty members who are constant co-workers and have done much to make the Foundation at that campus so successful."

Rep. Calvo Among Legislators at Pollution Meet

State Rep. Horace L. Calvo of Granite City was among more than 50 midwestern legislators from seven states attending a two-day conference on air pollution held in Chicago.

The legislators met at the invitation of the Illinois House Air Pollution Study Committee to discuss air pollution problems in their respective states and ways of dealing with them. Sessions of the conference were held in the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel and at the Institute of Gas Technology.

Illinois Representative J. Theodore Newer, conference chairman, said the meeting provided guests with background information on air pollution, including federal laws relating to its control and effective methods of state control. Representative Calvo, a member of the Environmental Study Committee to study pollution problems, explained "the conference was designed to aid state legislators in drafting comprehensive legislation to meet this growing public concern."

Seven States Involved Members of the House and Senate Committees dealing with air pollution in Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin attended the conference held in cooperation with the National Air Pollution Control Administration (NAPCA) and the Department of Medical and Public Affairs, George Washington University Medical Center.

Included in the conference was a tour of the Institute of Gas Technology's coal gasification project. The project, being carried on in a $6.7 million plant constructed with federal funds will convert coal into a high methane pollution free gas suitable as a substitute for natural gas. The conversion process removes all sulfur, a major source of pollution, from the coal. The pilot plant in Chicago will convert 80 tons of coal to 1.5 million cubic feet of gas per day. On a normal winter day in a city the size of Chicago consumers use 700 million to 800 million cubic feet of gas.
